A Dramatic Story Behind Japanese Constitution

Attorney James H. Pilkinton sent me a bond commentary which is the root of today's column.

It is the "Bank Bond Comment" of Wayne Hummer & Co., Chicago, a member of the New York Stock Exchange—and it discloses an amazing fact behind the postwar business rise of Japan, where the Bond Comment editor made a personal investigation.

Here is an excerpt from his report:

"What lies behind this dramatic surge? One of the big secrets in the Japanese success story is a long history of balanced budgets and absence of public debt. There is no direct national debt, as in the U.S. The national debt was wiped out at the end of World War II."

"The financial craftsman of the MacArthur occupation, Joseph Dodge, a conservative Detroit banker, wrote into the Japanese constitution that the government must balance its budgets. To this day, the 'general accounts budget' is balanced."

"During the 1965 'recession,' (when the real growth rate declined to only 5.4 per cent), the government initiated deficit financing policies. This was accomplished through issuance of 'government-guaranteed bonds' by agencies involved in public works. The volume of such 'red-letter' bonds has been limited, and today Japan's total guaranteed debt is only 14.3 billion. Combining government-guaranteed and state and local debt, total public debt is under $200 per capita, compared with more than $2,500 in the U.S."

If you think your Hope editor is a fanatic in harping upon the ever-climbing federal debt in our country, look what a sound old-fashioned American doctrine—pay as you go—has done for Japan.

Japan has literally risen from the ashes of war to become a formidable business competitor of industrial giants like the U.S. and Germany.

"And what about us? Lacking a constitutional restriction such as an American wrote into the Japanese document the United States has gone down the easy road of borrowing until now she is in federal debt alone about $400 billion."

Amazing as the Japanese success story is it doesn't compare to the American story—reverse—a nation saving its money as individuals but at the same time letting the politicians on the Potomac throw it into the sea.

I have repeatedly suggested there should be a law reducing all elective federal officers' salaries by the same percentage federal deficit bears to the federal debt.

Now I've changed my mind. Not a law—but a constitutional amendment.

Woman Cashed Checks for Hughes Story

URICH, Switzerland (AP) — Police throughout Europe are looking for a dark-haired woman who cashed $650,000 worth of checks which the McGraw-Hill Co. paid for a purported biography of industrialist Howard Hughes.

Swiss authorities confirmed an international warrant issued for the woman, 31 years of age, who collected the money from the Credit Bank in Zurich.

Swiss officials did not identify the woman. But Time magazine said she gave her name to the bank as Helga R. McGraw-Hill.

The McGraw-Hill Co. was made out to H.R. McGraw-Hill.

A warrant was issued after McGraw-Hill filed a criminal complaint alleging fraud last

Russia Lanes to Exchange Visits

TOKYO (AP) — Foreign Ministers Andrei A. Gromyko and Takeo Fukuda agreed today that the Soviet premier and the Japanese prime minister will exchange visits in the near future.

Fukuda told a news conference that he and Gromyko also exchanged "frank views" on President Nixon's visit to Peking next month, the recent meeting between Nixon and Prime Minister Eisaku Sato, the war in Indochina and the emergence of Bangladesh.

The two officials met twice today on the first working day of a visit by Gromyko during which the Soviet foreign minister is expected to make all the capital he can out of Japan's displeasure with its recent treatment by President Nixon.

Sources close to Fukuda said Gromyko generally welcomed Nixon's trip to Peking but told Fukuda his government hopes the growing rapprochement between China and the United States, Japan and other countries would not be directed against a third country, apparently meaning the Soviet Union.

Officials said Gromyko and Fukuda did not agree on dates for the reciprocal visits by their chiefs of government. One stumbling block is probably the expectation that Sato will retire this year. But Fukuda told newsmen he and Gromyko will sign a cultural exchange agreement before the visitor leaves Friday, and Gromyko also promised his government will soon release 14 Japanese fishermen held for violating waters claimed by the Russians in the northern Pacific.

Gromyko arrived in Japan Sunday for a six-day visit, resuming consultations that the Soviet and Japanese foreign ministers were supposed to have held every year. They have not met since 1967, and western sources in Moscow consider that the Soviet government is resuming the consultations because it sees an opportunity to profit from Japanese resentment at President Nixon's tough economic policies toward Japan and displeasure at Nixon's failure to give Japanese Prime Minister Eisaku Sato ample advance warning of the shift in his China policy.

The sources in Moscow also believe that the Kremlin is concerned by Japanese actions to improve relations with Peking and wants to balance this by strengthening ties between Moscow and Tokyo.

Authorities said the additional one-quarter cut is designed to take place over the next couple of years or so and would be contingent on congressional passage of legislation to provide special incentives for retirement of older AID employees.

The idea is to reduce the rolls through normal turnover such as retirements and resignations, rather than firing people. As one senior official explained: "We'll need this legislation so we can get rid of deadwood without losing our best men. Under 'reductions in force' (the usual seniority-based government-cutback procedure), you wind up keeping those who have been around longest and dropping the bright young fellows."

University Officials to Be Here January 28

Residents of Hempstead County will have an opportunity on January 28 to hear a report from officials of the University of Arkansas on objectives and needs of the University at a public meeting scheduled at 2 p.m. in the Town and Country Restaurant in Hope.

The meeting is one of a series being held throughout the state. University officials will discuss activities and programs of the University and will answer questions and receive comments from persons attending.

Speaker for the Hempstead County meeting will be Dr. Charles W. Oxford, U of A administrative vice president.

In inviting all interested persons to the meeting, Dr. David W. Mullins, U of A president, said that "We believe it is important to have the people of Arkansas know about the programs and needs of the University. Our students come from every county in the state. We have public service and research programs in addition to our teaching programs, which reach into all counties. In a sense, we wish to report on the stewardship of the University."

Foreign Aid Agency to Cut Back Help Abroad

By LEWIS GULICK

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign-aid chief John A. Hannah plans to announce an agency reorganization which will include a goal of cutting manpower another 25 per cent.

Hannah's global Agency for International Development already has shrunk nearly 30 per cent—more than any other major U.S. overseas civilian agency—under the administration's program to cut back U.S. staffs abroad.

From 17,569 in mid-1968, AID's roll of U.S. and foreign workers was down to 12,957 by the start of this year.

The further reduction, expected to be announced this week, is slated to apply mostly to overseas staffs, with AID handling more of its operations in its Washington headquarters.

Authorities said the additional one-quarter cut is designed to take place over the next couple of years or so and would be contingent on congressional passage of legislation to provide special incentives for retirement of older AID employees.

The idea is to reduce the rolls through normal turnover such as retirements and resignations, rather than firing people. As one senior official explained:

"We'll need this legislation so we can get rid of deadwood without losing our best men. Under 'reductions in force' (the usual seniority-based government-cutback procedure), you wind up keeping those who have been around longest and dropping the bright young fellows."

lowers."

Hannah's reorganization, due to take effect Feb. 1, would carry out internally some of the major revamping of the foreign-aid structure which President Nixon proposed to Congress last year. The legislators failed to act on Nixon's proposals and are unlikely to do so this election year.

Under the Nixon blueprint, the massive aid programs begun after World War II would be split up along security, economic-development and humanitarian lines and AID would be done away with in favor of new agencies.

In the absence of legislation, aides said Hannah intends to beef up AID's technical-assistance bureau and to consolidate some aid-serving functions scattered about in separate offices.

His plan would create also a new AID bureau for humanitarian assistance, now handled in different lower-level offices. Arms aid would continue to be administered by the Defense Department.

A big chunk of AID's earlier manpower cut stemmed from the scale-down of AID rolls in Vietnam. Officials said the future trend will bring personnel in other overseas posts back to Washington.

The aim is to have international institutions such as the World Bank, foreign governments and contractors do more of the work abroad, they said.

No Idea About Delegates

BENTON, Ark. (AP) — Joe Purcell said Sunday night he had "no idea" what recommendation Gov. Dale Bumpers would make about the selection of convention delegates during the Feb. 7 special session.

Purcell, who is the head of the state Democrat party, said he did not know what was included in the items the governor plans to unveil this week.

"I don't have any idea," Purcell said during a telephone interview at his home Sunday night. "It's a legislative problem."

The 1971 legislature passed a law requiring the delegates to national party conventions to be elected. However, it was discovered after the legislature adjourned that any runoff election of delegates would occur after the National Democratic Convention convenes this year.

A case is pending in court on whether a runoff election of delegates is needed.

Three Die in Wreck Near Nashville

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Arkansas' weekend traffic fatalities skyrocketed to nine with two triple fatality accidents recorded with 24 hours.

Three members of a Rogers family were killed in a traffic accident in Fayetteville Friday night. Three more persons were killed in a two-vehicle crash near Nashville Saturday night.

The Associated Press weekend highway fatality count began at 6 p.m. Friday and ended at midnight Sunday.

Killed were: —Maxie Bessent, 80, of Fort Smith, when she was struck by a car as she attempted to cross a Fort Smith street Sunday.

—Kate Hall, 51, of Jonesboro, when the car in which she was riding was struck by a pickup truck Sunday at the intersection of Arkansas 226 west and U.S. 63 bypass just south of Jonesboro.

—Tommy G. Osborne, 22, of Grange (Sharp County) when the car in which he was riding left the highway and struck a tree on Arkansas 115 South of Smithville (Lawrence County) Saturday night.

—Roscoe Robertson Jr., 24, of Dierks; Curtis Ware, 46, of Nashville; and Hubert Andrew Gilmore, 18, of De Queen, when a car driven by Robertson crossed the center line on Arkansas 4 near Nashville and struck a pickup truck driven by Ware.

Two Members of Sect Dead

SEATTLE (AP) — Two members of a religious sect were found dead Sunday after apparently inhaling a liquid substance as part of a church rite.

The King County medical examiner's office said the victims had taken part in the Church of Armageddon's "rite of breathing" which involved the use of the liquid substance placed in a plastic bag and held over their mouths.

Authorities said the men, both in their 20s, were found by another group member and city firemen were unable to revive the victims when they were called to the scene about three hours later.

Deputies said the Church of Armageddon believes that the men will revive in three days. At the request of church officials, an autopsy has been postponed until Tuesday.

Budget Deficit to Reach $64 Billion

The Budget in Brief

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is a look at President Nixon's fiscal 1973 budget in brief:

SPENDING—Total is $246.3 billion, up $9.6 billion over the current fiscal year.

REVENUES—The administration expects to collect $220.8 billion from the tax system, an increase of $23 billion.

DEFICITS—For the current fiscal year, the deficit is estimated at $38.8 billion, highest in 27 years. For fiscal 1973, the deficit would be $25.5 billion.

BUDGET CONCEPT—Nixon is sending a "full-employment budget" to Congress, meaning spending is held to the level of revenue that would be collected if the jobless rate were 4 per cent, defined as full employment. Such an approach is not inflationary, Nixon says.

DEFENSE—Budget will go up by $700 million to $78.3 billion, including funds for Atomic Energy Commission. Nixon is asking for budget authority to boost defense spending to $85.3 billion, up $6.3 billion. The cost would be spread out over future fiscal years and would go for new strategic-weapons programs, research and development and shipbuilding.

REVENUE SHARING—Nixon has asked $2.25 billion to use in the current fiscal year, retroactive to Jan. 1, 1971, to share with states, cities and localities with no strings attached. The fiscal 1973 budget asks $5 billion for general revenue sharing. In addition, about $600 million in new money is sought for special revenue sharing in six major areas.

INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS—All told, $3.84 billion would go for international affairs programs, a cut of $116 million. The direct arms-aid program would be cut by $200 million. But this would be made up by a $212-million increase in military-related economic assistance. The foreign-aid program would be cut by $70 million to $1.47 billion.

SOCIAL SECURITY—Nixon proposes a 5-per-cent increase in benefits, effective in June. For a full year, this would boost benefits by $3.5 billion. As he did a year ago, he asked for a cost-of-living provision in Social Security.

WELFARE—The President again made a pitch for his welfare-reform bill, which he calls "workfare," but proposed to start it in 1974, budgeting only $350 million for it in fiscal 1973. Altogether, expenditures for welfare, Social Security, railroad-retirement benefits and unemployment insurance would rise to $69.6 billion, up $4.4 billion from fiscal 1972.

HEALTH—Expenditures would go to $18.1 billion, up $1.1 billion, including spending of $9.9 billion for Medicare and $3.4 billion for Medicaid.

INTEREST—Interest on the public debt will go up by $1.1 billion to $21.1 billion because of the massive deficits during the Nixon administration.

LAW ENFORCEMENT—Expenditures of $5.5 billion, up $200 million, for law-enforcement functions throughout the federal government.

TAXES—Nixon proposed no new taxes. He didn't mention the value-added tax, which his administration has under study as a possible substitute for the property tax.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon handed Congress today a $246.3-billion budget for fiscal 1973 written in deep red ink. He announced two huge deficits—$388 billion this fiscal year and $356 billion next year—and said they will help speed up the nation's economic recovery.

His budget message asked neither for further tax cuts to stimulate the slack economy nor for tax increases to meet the climbing costs of government, although his deficits are the two largest since World War II.

"Deficit spending at this time, like temporary wage and price controls, is strong but necessary medicine," Nixon said. Yet his message slapped repeatedly at the Democratic-controlled Congress for spending more than he had asked.

Revenues will rise "as the new prosperity takes hold," Nixon promised. This trend makes possible the smaller deficit for fiscal 1973, starting next July 1, he said, and "brings us strongly forward toward our goal of a balanced budget in a time of full employment."

In asking $76.5 billion for defense, Nixon scheduled the first sizable increase in new weapons-system spending in years, even while "we move to zero draft calls."

He asked $3.191 billion for space, a bit more than this year but aimed at less lofty exploration goals.

And the President unveiled, as a basic turn in national strategy, a government-spirited

Enemy Antiaircraft Hit by Bombers

By RICHARD PYLE

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. planes attacked five North Vietnamese antiaircraft batteries in the demilitarized zone and North Vietnam Saturday and Sunday, knocked out two of them and damaged another, the U.S. Command announced.

American warplanes also dodged five antiaircraft missiles fired at them over Laos Sunday, the command said, but no planes were damaged in the weekend air flurry.

However, the command reported an Army OH6 observation helicopter shot down in the Mekong Delta, raising to seven the number of helicopters lost to enemy fire in the last eight days. One crewman was wounded in the crash in the delta.

The U.S. Command said the first attack Saturday was touched off by antiaircraft guns in the northern half of the demilitarized zone that fired on four Air Force F4 Phantoms, which were on missions over Laos. The Phantoms struck back, knocking out two of the guns and damaging a third, the command said.

The other three attacks Saturday were made by Navy A7 jets on antiaircraft sites around the Ban Karai pass. The command said two of the sites were taking hostile action, meaning their radars were tracking the U.S. planes.

Talks Traffic Safety

Sgt. Ray Davis of the Arkansas State Police brought a meaningful program on Traffic Safety to the Hope Rotary Club when it met at the Town and Country on Friday, January 21. The speaker, whose appearance was arranged for by Judge Finis Odum, said that two primary causes of traffic accidents were inattention by the driver and speed too fast for conditions of the road, the automobile and the emotions of the driver. He also read a letter from a 17 year old boy who had, supposedly, been killed in a traffic accident. Freeway Driving Tips were offered in pamphlets he made available, and a question and answer session concluded the program.

Dr. Sam Strong, president, announced that Ladies Night would be held February 25, and he named the committees to arrange it with Ray Lawrence, overall chairman. In addition to the club members, the luncheon meeting was also attended by one guest, Sid Phillips of Texarkana.

IBM Faced With Suit

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — International Business Machines, one of the nation's largest computer firms, is faced with an antitrust action and multi-million dollar damage suit filed by a competing Tulsa firm.

Telex Corp., which manufactures peripheral equipment for computers, has asked federal court here for $975 million in damages from IBM, and that the court break up IBM as one firm "monopolizing and controlling the electronic data-processing industry."

Peripheral equipment is electronic hardware attached to central processing units.

Budget Bad Break for Re-election Campaign

By STERLING F. GREEN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The huge deficits announced in today's budget message—more than $64 billion in two years—are a bad political break for President Nixon's re-election campaign.

They are sure-fire ammunition for Democrats, on whose past deficits Nixon has blamed his own problems with inflation, recession and the soaring federal debt.

The rich red ink, $38.8 billion worth in fiscal 1972 and $25.5 billion in the coming government year, could prompt demands for higher taxes and traditional Republican "fiscal responsibility" from the conservative wing of the President's own party. Conservatives have shown rising irritation with the Nixonian economics.

Nixon did his best to minimize a political backfire. The deficits are just the right tonic for the tired economy, he contended, and he implied that it is the Democratic-controlled Congress which needs to show fiscal discipline, not the Republican administration.

The message gives his administration credit for $22 billion in income tax relief gained by Americans since 1969, omitting the fact many of the cuts were unasked by the White House and some were opposed.

The budget shows evidence of tinkering with the timing of outlays. This has crowded more deficit spending into this fiscal year, before June 30, and less into fiscal 1973. The latter budget is the one that will be in the voters' minds next November.

The emphasis on spending planned this spring will provide the economic stimulus when it is needed to get the recovery rolling, a high White House official explained, instead of later on when, presumably, the recovery will have gained enough momentum to revive inflationary hazards.

The shift also will enable Nixon to tell voters—as he told Congress in the budget message—that even though the deficits are large they are being reduced, and federal budgets are being brought under control.

A White House source said about $1 billion in federal welfare payments to the states which normally would come after the turn of the fiscal year are being handed over to the states before the new book-keeping year begins.

In fact, about $4 billion of the outlays now scheduled for fiscal 1972 could be shifted to fiscal 1973 if the administration wished to delay the spending, this source acknowledged. But, he added, "We think the fiscal thrust should be greater in 1972."

There is little doubt that both deficits are swollen by some items that Congress is unlikely to approve, including revenue sharing. If Congress balks, the $2.2 billion budgeted for that program this fiscal year would be a handy cushion to offset possible cost increases in other programs—or to point to as evidence that the deficits are being reduced.

The message alternately attacks Congress for overspending Nixon requests on programs it favors and scolds the lawmakers for not voting the funds for programs he favors.

Congress has made "costly mistakes" in past reductions of defense budgets, Nixon said in advocating more money for the Pentagon. Older people "have waited long enough," he said, for Congress to provide Social Security reforms. He complained that his plan to aid needy students is stalled: "There it sits, in Congress, while thousands of young people miss their chance."

On the other hand, the message bespeaks the President's pride that "the rate of increase in government spending has been cut nearly in half" compared to what it describes as comparable years of the Johnson administration. The Johnson years were those of the Vietnam buildup.

The current deficits are pictured as being of exactly the right size to speed the recovery without reviving the price-wage spiral.

His critics in Congress already have taken a line that ignores such fine-tuning of fiscal policy.

Their strategy has been simply to remind voters that Nixon, who took office promising a policy of budget surpluses and denouncing Democratic deficits as breeders of inflation:

—Will have amassed combined deficits of more than $90 billion in his four-year administration, far more than any administration since World War II, and —Has yet to prove that inflation is licked even after resorting to mandatory wage-price controls.

Nixon assumed there will be a strong upward thrust of production, income and profits in 1972 to achieve his projected $23-billion increase in tax revenues from this fiscal year to the next.

Unlike his overoptimistic estimates of a year ago, however, the White House projections this time are generally in line with the expectations of a majority of professional economists.

Springlike Weather Due to End

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The spring-like weather Arkansas has enjoyed the past few days is expected to end by tonight.

A cold front is expected to enter the extreme northwest portion of the state about noon today and then move south-eastward. The front should advance past the southeast corner of the state by midnight.

Temperatures ranging from the mid 20s in the north to the mid 40s in the south are expected tonight. Much cooler readings are also forecast for Tuesday.

Highs Sunday were mostly in the 70s. Highs today should be in the 60s north to 70s south with maximum readings Tuesday expected in the 40s north to 50s south.

Westerly winds continue to provide stable conditions in the state, practically eliminating any chance of precipitation.

Overnight lows include Fayetteville 34, Harrison 40, Jonesboro 47, Pine Bluff 61, Texarkana 59, El Dorado 62, Memphis 56, Little Rock 45 and Fort Smith 36.

No rainfall was reported in the state during the 24-hour period ended at 6 a.m.

New Ruling on Loans

WASHINGTON (AP) — New rules will allow federal savings and loan associations to lend apartment builders up to 80 percent of a project's value and give them up to 30 years to repay, it was announced today.

Preston Martin, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, told of the rules in a speech to the National Association of Home Builders convention in Houston, Tex.

The regulations will increase maximum loans from 75 to 80 percent of an apartment project's value and lengthen the repayment period from 25 to 30 years, Martin said.

Court Okays Stay in Turner Case

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Supreme Court ruled today, in effect, that school boards lack the power to grant public school teachers tenure status.

The court held that Arkansas law provides that a school board, as it may be constituted following any annual school election, is free to hire and fire any teacher with or without cause.

The law does not give school boards authority to grant teachers tenure beyond what is provided in the contracts under which teachers are employed. The law provides that such contracts will be for one year only.

The unanimous decision upheld the dismissal of Harold Nethercutt and Charles T. Payne as associate superintendents in the Pulaski County School District.

Leroy Gattin, who was superintendent at the time, gave Nethercutt and Payne notice on June 3, 1969 that the board had voted on April 8, 1969 not to renew their contracts for the 1969-70 school year.

The board gave as the reason for its action the contention that the services of the two men had been inefficient and incompetent.

Nethercutt and Payne had been employed by the district under annual contracts for a number of years.

Effective July 1, 1968, the board had adopted a teacher tenure policy granting tenure status to teachers who had received a contract for their fourth consecutive year of employment by the district.

The policy included provisions providing for notice of inefficient, incompetent or insubordinate service so that the employee would have opportunity to remedy the deficiencies.

Another provision said that if the problem had not been remedied within 30 days, the employee would be given a hearing.

In dismissing Nethercutt and Payne, the board did not honor either of those provisions.

The court said, however, that there was evidence that the board had suspended its rules before voting not to renew the contracts.

BACK IN THE NEWS. Father James Groppi was all smiles after the Supreme Court overturned the jail sentence handed him by the Wisconsin legislature on a contempt charge in 1969. The court held the legislature had violated the Milwaukee civil rights advocate's constitutional right to due process of the law under the 14th Amendment.

Wide Range on Expenditure

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The per pupil expenditure in Arkansas' 389 school districts ranges from $322 to $1,717 this year although the average is $477 per pupil.

The figures are included in the annual report of the state Education Department. The report also says the districts have an assessed valuation of $2.2 billion, an increase of more than $109 million from last year.

Bobby K. Hayes of Calico Rock filed suit last week in U.S. District Court challenging the system of financing schools in the state. He contends that the system denies poor school districts equal protection.

The report showed the lowest per pupil expenditure is $322 in the Palestine District in St. Francis County and the highest is $1,717 in the Collins District in Drew County.

Priest, Others to Trial for Kissinger Plot

By LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The Rev. Phillip Berrigan and six codefendants go on trial today on antiwar conspiracy charges which include an accusation that they plotted to kidnap presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger.

Berrigan urged his followers to use the trial as a vehicle to revive the antiwar movement.

"Instead of over concern for us, how about using the trial as an occasion for giving rebirth to the movement?" Berrigan said in a written statement read by one of his attorneys to 200 supporters holding a peace service outside the Dauphin County prison Sunday night.

The priest is confined at the prison and will be the only one of the defendants to remain in custody during the trial. He is serving a sentence for destruction of draft board records.

Two other priests, a nun, a Pakistani scholar, and a former priest and former nun now married to each other go on trial with Berrigan. He was named by the government as the mastermind of the alleged scheme that also included blowing up heating tunnels to federal buildings in Washington and vandalizing draft board offices across the nation.

An eighth defendant, a convicted draft file destroyer, will be tried separately. The judge severed him from the current case when he insisted on acting as his own lawyer.

A panel of 175 prospective jurors has been summoned to the courtroom of U.S. District Court Judge R. Dixon Herman. The courtroom is heavily guarded. Passes are needed for the 80 spectator seats, half reserved for newsmen. The trial is expected to last three months. It will cost the government an estimated $1 million, and the defense probably half that much.

Berrigan was brought to the Dauphin County Prison last week from the Danbury (Conn.) Correctional Institution. He has been meeting with his codefendants and the seven defense lawyers.

The 48-year-old self-styled "revolutionary priest" is serving a six-year term for burning and pouring human blood on draft files in Baltimore and Catonsville, Md. His priest-brother, Daniel, is at Danbury on similar draft raid charges.

Heading the defense are Ramsey Clark, 43, a former attorney general and son of a retired Supreme Court justice, and Leonard B. Boudin, 60, a Harvard University law professor.

The chief prosecutor is Deputy Atty. Gen. William S. Lynch. He was promoted to a leading role in the Justice Department's organized crime section when Clark was attorney general in 1968.

Avoid Slippery Policial Issues

By LYNN SHERR
Associated Press Writer

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Still avoiding what he calls the "slippery political questions" of American journalists, Soviet poet Yevgeny Yevtushenko nonetheless indulged in the world's most popular diplomatic sport, Ping Pong.

Displaying a wicked backhand serve and a tendency to pout when he missed the point, the flamboyant Russian writer played in a doubled match Sunday with three students at Rider College.

The game came between rehearsals for the big poetry-and-concert event to be held at Madison Square Garden Friday.

"I think we can get him in the rematch," joked Carlo Antomare, 19, director of The Bijou Singers who has set Yevtushenko's poetry to some lively music.

Away from the table tennis table, however, the 38-year-old Yevtushenko steered clear of controversial issues, particularly those which question his freedom to travel, as on his current trip, to promote his new book of poems, "Stolen Apples."

In other remarks during an hour-and-a-half ride to the Rider campus from his New York hotel, Yevtushenko revealed that he might stop writing poetry this year and turn to prose instead. He is already working on a novel.

Admittedly fatigued by an exhausting four days of social events, at which he chatted with such persons as Nixon adviser Henry Kissinger, actor Warren Beatty and author Kurt Vonnegut, Jr., Yevtushenko rubbed his eyes and chain-smoked filter cigarettes.

Yevtushenko said that on an earlier trip to America he had taken LSD once and had smoked marijuana—"Six times, but nothing happened," he said, sounding almost disappointed.

"I am told by a friend that it is because I am abnormally normal. I think people on drugs all have complexes. I have none."

He accused America of being "a difficult country to understand," and said Americans are "ignorant."

"Americans know less about us than we do about them," he said, explaining that he felt something special for America. "But Americans don't read any literature. And you have no poet who speaks for America. You have no new Walt Whitman," he said.

"You need an American Yevtushenko."

Administrator Pleads Guilty

HELENA, Ark. (AP) — Carlos J. R. Smith, former administrator of Helena Hospital, pleaded guilty Saturday to 19 counts of embezzling $51,887.89 in hospital funds and was sentenced to two years in prison on each charge with the sentences to run concurrently.

Circuit Court Judge O.H. Hargraves passed sentence after granting Smith's request to waive formal arraignment on the charges.

The two-year sentence was recommended by Pros. Atty. Gene Raff of Helena on the condition that Smith repay the $51,887.89, plus interest. Raff said Smith had done so.

Rusk Warns of Nuclear War

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Dean Rusk, former U.S. secretary of state, says the problem of war must be solved before a nuclear conflict develops.

"We shall not have a chance to start over after world War III," he told about 1,300 persons Saturday at the Centennial Convocation commemorating the first enrollment at the University of Arkansas. "There just won't be enough left."

Rusk spoke as scheduled in the Men's Gym at the university. The Northwest Arkansas Times here received an envelope Friday saying that if Rusk appeared as scheduled bombs would explode in Little Rock, Fort Smith and Fayetteville. The note was unsigned.

No special security precautions were evident at the university.

Rusk seemed unruffled by a half-dozen persons who shouted numerous times during his talk and occasionally changed, "Stop the War, Stop the lies."

Dr. David W. Mullins, university president, introduced Rusk as secretary of state "during a particularly difficult and turbulent time."

Rusk served under presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson during the period of escalation of U.S. involvement in the war in Southeast Asia.

Rusk listed the nation's main problems as being in the fields of environment, population control, race relations, economics and the quest for peace.

Prior to the speech, a group called Vietnam Veterans against the War unfurled two 40-foot banners, one saying, "Give peace a chance," the other listing the Arkansas dead in the Vietnam war.

How to Beat the Band

Dear Helen: After the last of our three children was born, my husband started playing in a band on weekends, partly as a hobby, partly because we needed the extra money.

When the last child started school, we made a deal. I would go back to work part time and he would quit the band. At first this worked fine—he was tired of playing anyway.

A year later the good ole band players showed up again, claiming they just couldn't get along without him. So for a while we both worked. You'd think we would have saved money, but we just blew it, and went deeper in debt for bigger cars and better appliances which weren't really needed.

This summer I took a full-time job and thought for sure my husband would quit the band, since we can get along without the extra income. But now he talks of a nicer home, a boat, etc. I don't really want them as much as I want a one-job husband. I'm tired of sitting home alone every Friday and Saturday night, and it's worse to go and sit with the "band wives," exchanging recipes, etc.

I'm also tired of working and trying to keep up a home that we aren't in enough to enjoy.

I'd feel like an ogre asking my husband to quit the band, for even though he gripes, he enjoys playing. However, I keep hoping that if I make enough money, he will. Which is why I don't quit working.

How do we break out of this vicious circle?—WEEKEND WIDOW

Dear W.W.: I don't think a wife (or husband) should EVER ask a mate to give up the job he enjoys. Precious few people even find such jobs—and they have the right to savor them, even though the rest of the family must adjust to a somewhat awkward schedule.

How to adjust? Stop thinking that "weekends" are the only days of the week. If you go back to part-time work, W.W., you'll gain enough energy so that you and the family can enjoy week-days—and you and your husband can plan dinners out, shows, etc.

on those other five unoccupied nights. Really, Fridays and Saturdays are the worst possible times to buck the crowds. Knock off that "weekend syndrome," and you'll stop resenting the band.

...And, as soon as your husband knows you aren't against his paying-hobby, he may stop using upward mobility as an excuse to keep it.—H.

Dear Helen:

Since so many people worry about throwing away those lovely Christmas cards, here's a way to use some of them—for next year's decorations:

I make tree ornaments or larger hanging decorations by cutting cards into circles, any size. Then I fold four sides of the circle so that the card cut-out becomes "square" again. I staple these folds to each other making a block. (Actually the finished products look like overgrown dice, except the sides have colorful pictures on them instead of dots.) All you need then is a string attached to the top of the six-sided ornament and you'd be surprised how much it brightens up a tree—or a room.—LILLIAN

Dear Helen:

I have strong reason to believe our 21-year-old daughter has started smoking marijuana since she moved to the city and took an apartment with another girl. I dropped in on them unexpectedly last week, and there was a strange odor. My daughter has a responsible position and is very brilliant and well thought of in her firm.

Should I threaten to tell her boss unless she promises to quit?—MRS. M.

Dear Mrs. M.:

Threaten nothing! Your daughter is a responsible adult and able to make her own decisions—which quite possibly include one against pot: a "strange odor" is small evidence, you know. If you can discuss drugs as two reasonable adults—fine. Otherwise, back off, Mama. Your bossing days are over.—H.

Questions and Answers

By: GLENDA BOZEMAN

Q. Is there any age limit to qualify for disability insurance under social security?

A. No. A worker of any age who meets the requirements can receive payments for himself and certain family dependents for the duration of his disability. The worker must have been engaged in social security work from one and a half to five years depending on his age.

Q. I was born in 1905. How many quarters of coverage do I need to be eligible to receive retirement insurance?

A. A woman of your age needs 16 quarters of coverage to be fully insured, and a man needs 19 quarters of covered employment to receive retirement insurance. A useful booklet, (No. 47) "Social Security Benefits - How To Estimate The Amount" and "Social Security Benefits - How You Earn Them," will be mailed to anyone who asks the Social Security Office for a copy.

Q. This week, I had my first covered medical services under Medicare. Do I have to meet the deductible again after the end of this year?

A. There is a $50 deductible amount for each year. However, any part of the deductible which is first met in the fourth quarter of the year can also be carried forward and applied to the $50 deductible for the following year.

Q. I have been receiving social security disability benefits and am still just as disabled as ever but a friend has offered to let me try working for his company. Should this be reported to social security?

A. Yes. This may or may not cause your checks to stop depending on all the circumstances—your health, the work, number of hours, etc. However, the work must be reported.

Q. If a person has been receiving disability payments and he has recovered from his disability even though he is not working, should he report his recovery to the social security office?

A. Yes. If a person recovers from being too disabled to work, he will no longer be entitled to receive monthly disability benefits. He should report this to his social security office right away.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer NEW YORK (AP) — When you've seen one ice show on television, you have pretty much seen them all—except for Peggy Fleming's specials.

The usual skating show is shot from rinkside in an auditorium and the TV viewer becomes a vicarious member of the audience. Miss Fleming's imaginative specials are made just for television. It makes a vast difference and they are a joy to watch.

Sunday night's "To Europe with Love" on NBC was shot outdoors in France, Switzerland and Germany. It was an enchanting combination of skating, music that included some soft singing by Andy Williams, and magnificent winter scenery.

Miss Fleming's skill on skates is impressive, but she also has a gentle charm which she used as a sort of tour guide as she revisited Grenoble—where five years ago she won her Olympic gold medal—and moved on to Davos in Switzerland and then to a castle in Bavaria. All places were surrounded by Snow-covered Alps.

It was not all Miss Fleming: There was a delightful "ballerina" Swiss children playing ice hockey, in slow motion. There were sleigh rides, walks on snowy roads and at one point Peggy was on a cottage roof in Davos helping a group of sweeps clean a chimney.

It was a very pleasant hour. CBS' "60 minutes" turned in an especially provocative mix of subjects. There was a carefully balanced airing of production-line troubles in General Motors' Vega plant in Lockwood, Ohio, with management and labor expressing opposing viewpoints. There was a report on military deserters, including interviews with some who take no pains to hide although they are fugitives. Pentagon estimates are that some 30,000

Portrait Of a Queen

A hard subject to paint and please all her subjects. Queen Elizabeth has figured in past art circle tempests raised by portraits British critics deemed too modern, unflattering or otherwise not quite fitting. Her latest however, accentuates the traditional and is by an American artist—Joseph Wallace King of Winston-Salem, N.C. Unveiled in London, the King portrait, right, shows the queen in a soft blue gown and wearing a necklace once the possession of her great-great-grandmother, Queen Victoria, against a castle-crowned landscape. The North Carolina artist, who signs his paintings "Vincitata" and is known for an Italianate style featuring a castle symbol—in the queen's portrait it is Dover Castle—is pictured below with the subject of a mother of his portraits, which hangs in Duke University law school, the President's alma mater.

Heart Catheter Samples Blood

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Would you explain heart catheterization? What are the indications for having it done? Does it act as a treatment?

Dear Reader—A catheter is a hollow tube. The end of the hollow tube is slipped into a vein, usually in the arm. Since the veins get increasingly larger as they approach the heart the tube is easily advanced along with the bloodstream to the top of the heart where the two main veins enter the heart.

The catheter can then pass, still in the direction of the blood flow, into the right lower chamber that pumps blood to the lungs. Still following the blood flow, the catheter can be passed out the main artery to the lungs. This artery continues to branch out like a tree until the arteries are so small the catheter can go no farther.

Anywhere along the route a blood sample can be drawn out of the hollow tube, or the tube can be connected to a device to measure the blood pressure at the tip of the catheter.

Since the right heart pumps only blue venous blood, the amount of oxygen in the blood will be small. If there is a hole between the right and left heart (the left heart pumps only red oxygenated blood) the red blood will squirt into the right heart and increase the amount of oxygen in the blood. These problems and changes in the heart valves can cause changes in the blood pressure within the heart. The changes in the blood pressure and amount of oxygen in the blood enable the doctor to determine the location and size of a hole that shouldn't be there or the amount of damage.

To catheterize the left side of the heart, the catheter must be passed through an artery backward into the left heart. By slipping the end of the catheter into the openings of the coronary arteries that supply the heart muscle with blood and then injecting dye into the arteries, X-ray pictures can surgery. In specialized use they are helpful in determining the degree of obstruction of the arteries to the heart muscle.

It is not a treatment. It is used only to provide a more accurate diagnosis of how the heart functions. This is often necessary to know before deciding if surgery should or should not be done.

Terry, Porkers Make A&M Sick

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Martin Terry, who says he was ill, made Texas A&M sick Saturday.

Terry scored a University of Arkansas record 46 points as the Razorbacks broke a seven-game losing streak with a 100-89 Southwest Conference victory over the Aggies.

Terry made 12 of 23 shots from the field and 22 of 24 from the free throw line.

"I've got the flu," Terry said after the game. "I still don't feel very well."

Coach Lanny Van Eman said he played an important part in the victory, only the Razorbacks' second conference victory in two years under Van Eman.

"When we hustle, we get the loose balls and the rebounds, and we fill the lane on our fast break, and we score the points," he said.

"There's not much left to say about Martin Terry," Van Eman said.

Arkansas led 49-48 at the half and the game was tied 80-80 with four minutes remaining when Terry hit two free throws to put the Razorbacks ahead for good.

Vernon Murphy contributed 25 points to the Razorbacks' attack.

Wayne Howard led the Aggies with 25 points. Jeff Overhouse and Marion Brown scored 18 each.

Both teams are now 1-1 in SWC play.

Lornhorns, Raiders at SWC Top

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Larry Robinson has replaced the butterflies with baskets and the Texas Longhorns have joined the Texas Tech Red Raiders atop the Southwest Conference standings.

A clear leader in the chase will emerge Tuesday night when the Longhorns and Red Raiders collide in Austin in a 7:30 p.m. tipoff.

Robinson, a sophomore with a five-star rating before he came to Texas from Hobbs, N.M., canned a layup at the buzzer Saturday night to give Texas a pulsating 77-75 victory over Baylor.

He finished the night with 22 points after opening with 35 points against Rice last week in his varsity debut.

"Before I was kind of shaky—I don't know why," Robinson said. "I guess I was afraid to make a mistake. Now, it's coming naturally, not just for me but for everybody. I guess it was just getting accustomed to playing together."

The 6-foot-6 forward has joined Texas Tech's Greg Lowery and Arkansas' Martin Terry as one of the premier players in the league.

And Lowery, who scored 30 points against Rice Saturday in an 89-85 victory over the Owls on the road, gets to make his own personal test of Robinson Tuesday night in the crucial game.

Robinson, who worked three hours a day on a basketball court last summer in Houston, was heavily recruited, but decided on Texas because "What I really wanted was a good education. As far as professional basketball is concerned, I couldn't see myself playing pro ball. Looking toward the future, I still don't see how I could make it. There are just too many good players up there."

Texas and Tech each own 2-0 records with defending champion Texas Christian, Texas A&M, Southern Methodist and Arkansas at 1-1. Baylor and Rice are winless in two league starts.

In other games Saturday, SMU blasted TCU 81-71 and Arkansas, behind Terry's school record 46 points, blasted Texas A&M 100-89.

There were some off-the-court fireworks at the SMU-TCU fray in Dallas.

TCU Coach Johnny Swaim and Mustang assistant Mike Pinkham got into a shouting match.

"I was on Pinkham because he was hollering at one of my players," Swaim said. "It always upsets me when another coach hollers at one of my players. I don't holler at him. He should be a gentleman like Bob Prewitt (SMU Head Coach)."

In other games Tuesday night, Arkansas is at SMU, Baylor is at Rice and TCU is at Texas A&M.

Pistol Pete Hotter Than Firecracker

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pistol Pete is hotter than a firecracker ... on Sundays.

Pete Maravich, one of Atlanta's top gunners, admits he can't play "consistently every night" because he still is underweight from a battle with mononucleosis last fall. But on Sundays, he's dynamite.

On Sunday, he fired in 35 points, including 14 in the final five minutes, as the Hawks outshot Milwaukee's defending National Basketball Association champions 118-113. The previous Sunday, Maravich triggered another Atlanta victory with a pro career high of 50 points.

After his sizzling performance against the Bucks, the weary Maravich said: "I was very tired at the end. I'm playing at full strength for 184 pounds, but I was down 26 pounds, and I'm still down 18 pounds."

Despite his admitted physical weakness, Maravich showed no signs of weariness on the court. After Milwaukee had cut an Atlanta 17-point third-quarter lead to 100-97 with 5:17 remaining, the on-target Pistol popped in 14 of the Hawks' last 18 points.

Elsewhere in the NBA Sunday, Boston beat Portland 115-101, New York edged Seattle 101-99, Houston nipped Detroit 109-107 and Baltimore blasted Cincinnati 132-101.

The red-hot Maravich hit 10 field goals and 15 of 15 free throws. He also had a career high of 14 assists.

Lou Hudson added 31 points and Walt Bellamy 25 for the Hawks. Kareem Jabbar topped Milwaukee with 33 points and Oscar Robertson scored 24.

Boston's John Havlicek, playing his 10th season in the NBA, moved into 11th place on the all-time scoring list with a career total of 16,289 points by connecting for 24 against Portland. He moved ahead of Paul Arizin, who amassed 16,286.

Dave Cowens paced the Celtics with 26 points and 15 rebounds, while Portland's Sidney Wicks tallied 25 points.

Baltimore, led by Archie Clark's 26 points, broke loose for 43 points in the fourth quarter to rout the Royals. Cincinnati's Nate Archibald was the game's high scorer with 28 points.

New York, which held a 15-point lead over Seattle with 4:15 remaining, thwarted a strong Super Sonic rally with the help of Earl Monroe's season-high 27 points. Dick Snyder connected for 26 points for Seattle.

Stu Lantz poured in 32 points and rookie Mike Newlin contributed 26, leading Houston's victory over Detroit. Dave Bing led the Pistons with 32.

In the NBA Saturday, it was: Cincinnati 113, Cleveland 96; Chicago 115, Houston 108; Baltimore 116, Portland 99; Golden State 113, Philadelphia 106, and Phoenix 116, Los Angeles 102.

"When the chips are down, you go to your best," said Louisville Coach Denny Crum. That would be Jim Price.

"He was there when we needed him," said Crum.

Indeed he was. Price paid off with a 30-foot shot at the buzzer that gave the sixth-ranked Cardinals a nerve-wrenching 79-77 overtime collegiate basketball victory over Drake Saturday night.

Up to that point, the Price wasn't right.

"That happens to a real fine, ballplayer sometimes," said Crum. "He might not be having one of his better games ... but he wins for you in the clutch situations."

Price wasn't among the game-high scorers, as is his custom. But he did deliver his club's last three baskets, including two long-range shots from 30 feet.

Louisville, posting its 12th straight victory—and seventh in a row on the road—was able to do something that several other Top Twenty teams could not over the weekend.

Five of The Associated Press' 16 ranked clubs in action Saturday and Sunday were defeated. Duke trimmed No. 3 North Carolina 76-74; St. John's, N.Y., shocked No. 15 Villanova 71-69 and Kentucky took No. 19 Tennessee 72-70.

As expected, top-ranked

UCLA walloped Denver 108-61 and second-rated Marquette toppled DePaul 70-61 to extend their records to 14-0. Other Top Ten winners included No. 4 Long Beach State, which beat Loyola of Chicago 79-56, and No. 7 Ohio State, an 80-74 winner over Indiana.

Louisville, which hasn't lost since its opening game against Florida, wound up an exhausting, month-long road trip which included a title-winning effort in New York's Holiday Festival Tournament in late December.

"You've got to play good defense on the road," said Crum, "and that's where we let up late in the game. We were especially sloppy off the defensive board. Four or five times late in the game we came off with the rebound and threw away the ball."

That's when Drake rallied from a 12-point deficit in the final five minutes to throw the game into overtime.

Price's outside artillery then spoiled the day for Drake Coach Howard Stacey. Crum's Missouri Valley Conference colleague.

Robby West's 20-foot jump shot with three seconds left pulled out the Blue Devils' victory, the fifth straight year they have whipped the Tar Heels at Duke.

Rick Williams scored 40 points to help Iowa wipe out South Carolina in the second game of a doubleheader in Chicago. Long Beach was the opening-game winner behind Ed Ratleff's 22 points.

George Zambetti put in two foul shots to help Fordham hold off Princeton; Richie Lyons hit a 14-foot jump shot with three seconds for St. John's and Jim Andrews scored the winning points for Kentucky with two seconds remaining.

"We predicted it would be a tough game when it started," said Kentucky Coach Adolph Rupp. "You can throw out the record books when these teams meet."

Elsewhere in the Top Twenty, 11th-ranked Florida State beat Georgia Tech 71-69; No. 12 Southwestern Louisiana downed Louisiana Tech 107-86; 13th-rated Brigham Young whipped Utah State 101-82; No. 16 Marshall turned back Bowling Green 103-80; 17th-ranked Minnesota stopped Michigan State 67-57 and No. 18 Hawaii defeated Pepperdine 125-88.

Dwight Lamar, the nation's leading scorer, had 48 points for Southwestern Louisiana as the Ragin' Cajuns whipped Louisiana Tech, ranked No. 2 in the college division.

Stenerud Comes Through for American League

By RON ROACH
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jan Stenerud, his first two field goal attempts failing, wondered whether he belonged in the Pro Bowl with the elite of the National Football League.

The nightmare of losing pro football's longest game also lingered.

Stenerud proved he belongs.

Goat of the Kansas City-Miami double sudden-death overtime 27-24 Chiefs' defeat last month because he missed two field goals, Stenerud was voted offensive player of 22nd annual Pro Bowl Sunday.

His four field goals helped the American Conference topple the National Conference 26-13. The 26-year-old Norwegian soccer-style place kicker said he wasn't alone in doubting his ability.

"I heard some people in the stands saying, 'What are you doing in this game?'" Stenerud said. "and I had some thoughts about that myself after I missed that second field goal."

His first field goal attempt, from 38 yards out, was partially blocked by Detroit middle linebacker Mike Lucci. His second attempt, also in the first quarter, sailed wide of the uprights from 28 yards away.

"I was very glad I got another chance," Stenerud said. "As it is I kind of redeemed myself. I'm looking forward to next season now."

His field goals, from 25, 23, 48 and 42 yards, along with Kansas City quarterback Len Dawson's five-yard touchdown pass to Cleveland's Milt Morin, gave the AFC a 19-6 lead with nine seconds gone in the fourth quarter.

The NFC, which defeated the AFC 27-6 last year in the first Pro Bowl since the merger, had scored first on a 50-yard pass from Detroit's Greg Landry to Minnesota's Bob Grim. It narrowed the gap to six points with almost eight minutes to play in the game when San Francisco's Vic Washington swept left end untouched for two yards.

But the AFC marched 73 yards in 12 plays, all on the ground and including 42 yards in seven carries by Eugene "Mercury" Morris of Miami. Victory was assured with 1:22 left when Denver's Floyd Little scored on a six-yard run.

AFC Coach Don McCafferty of Baltimore said he was tired of AFC vs. NFC discussion.

But Morris wasn't: "We're always at war with the NFC. We always have to prove ourself."

The players weren't really up for this game, not like a regular game," said Stenerud. "It was a very relaxed atmosphere. But I still think we wanted this one a lot more than they did."

Miami's Bob Griese started for the AFC at quarterback and turned the tables on Roger Staubach, Dallas quarterback in the 24-3 Super Bowl victory over the Dolphins.

Griese hit on eight of 16 passes for 114 yards, four of them going to fellow Dolphin Paul Warfield for 75 yards, and Staubach completed just one of six passes for 14 yards as each played about half the game.

"I'm going to start working out immediately for next season," said Staubach. "This game definitely won't make me complacent. I can't remember when I had two interceptions in one game."

Staubach, who had only four interceptions all season, "didn't have the time to throw but I thought he called some very good plays," said Coach Dick Nolan of San Francisco.

At Dallas, Coach Tom Landry called the plays and Staubach has said he won't be a complete quarterback until he takes control of the game through calling plays.

Each team had only one week to prepare so a rule was installed to prohibit blocking of punts. It appeared that several would otherwise have been blocked.

Winners took home $2,000 losers $1,500.

Stenerud in particular, took home more than money—because "I didn't know how long that bad luck could last."

Wallace Brushes Aside Challenge for Debate

By BILL KOSMAN
Associated Press Writer
Alabama Gov. George Wallace has brushed aside a challenge to debate fellow Democratic presidential candidate John V. Lindsay, but the New York mayor says Wallace's response doesn't rule out a verbal confrontation.

Wallace, who is running against Lindsay and eight other contenders in the Florida Democratic primary, said Sunday: "I don't intend at this time to engage him in debate because my program mapped out didn't leave any time for it."

"I don't know whether I ought to draw any crowd for Mayor Lindsay or not, but that's probably what he wants to do, and I think he's running low in Florida," Wallace said. Lindsay issued the debate challenge last week and at the same time said Wallace "stands for everything wrong with this country." In a telegram to the governor, Lindsay called for a "one-hour, man-to-man" debate.

Lindsay offered to meet Wallace in Montgomery, Ala., if the governor agreed to debate. Wallace, who appeared in Washington on the CBS radio-TV program "Face the Nation," insisted again that he is "a serious candidate" for the Democratic presidential nomination. But he refused to rule out the possibility that he will run again as a third-party candidate as he did in 1968.

Wallace's insistence that he is a bonafide candidate has been challenged by Democratic National Chairman Lawrence O'Brien, who has charged Wallace will make a shambles out of the nominating process by entering party primaries.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana Sunday said he would not support Wallace.

Girl Slain, Three Held

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Police are checking their list of missing persons in an attempt to identify a young woman whose dismembered body was found in the bathroom of an apartment where three men were drinking beer.

Acting on a tip, police discovered the body Sunday. One of the three men in the apartment, the tipster's brother, was charged with murder.

Lt. Leo Donovan said the woman was 16 to 20 years old. In the bathroom, he said, police also found a handgun, a crowbar, a 12-inch butcher knife, a six-inch pocket knife and a screwdriver.

The murder charge was filed against Lloyd Sikorski, 17, a high school pupil.

Two men found with him, William Turner, 17, another pupil, and David Luzak, 20, a painter and the apartment's occupant, were charged with first-degree criminal facilitation and first-degree hindering prosecution.

Donovan said Sikorski's brother Boleslaus, 20, had gone to the apartment, seen the body and left on the pretense he wanted to buy cigarettes. He ran several blocks to a police station and told a desk lieutenant there was a cut-up body in the apartment, Donovan said.

Snakes' eyes are covered by hard, transparent, plastic-like caps so they can burrow without hurting their eyes. They have no eyelids.

New Austerity Plan Starts in Egypt

CAIRO (AP) — New austerity measures to put the Egyptian economy on a war footing went into effect today. They include a ban on imported luxury items, higher taxes and a promise to crack down on the thriving black market.

"Each one of us shall contribute to the battle preparations according to his income," Prime Minister Aziz Sidky told parliament Sunday in his first policy statement since his 31-member "war cabinet" took office five days ago.

He announced a ban on imports of cigarettes, luxury furniture and expensive cotton goods; a 50 per cent tax increase on such imports as television sets and tape recorders, and a new land tax of $48 per acre.

Sidky, a veteran of the economic ministries, said enforcement of the new measures would be "firm and severe."

The prime minister ascribed the need for austerity to Israeli reluctance to enter into a peace agreement, a reluctance he said was fed by continued U.S. backing for Israel.

He also warned that U.S. interests in the Middle East would not be secure if all-out war should break out.

Observers thought such passages in the speech might have been intended to appease striking students at Cairo University who have demanded military training, an end to the Suez Canal truce, more sacrifice from Egypt's upper classes and expulsion of U.S. oil companies from the Arab world.

Several thousand students continued a sit-in at an auditorium of Cairo University for a sixth day today.

But a march from the university to Parliament was thwarted by hundreds of riot police who used tear gas, smoke bombs and bamboo sticks to disperse about 500 students who gathered outside the campus. The students pelted the police with rocks but scattered quickly when the police charged them.

Lowest Prime Interest Rate

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Provident Bank of Cincinnati now offers what is believed to be the lowest prime interest rate in the nation—4 1/2 per cent.

Provident President Carl Lindner said the rate is the lowest charged by any bank in the United States since 1958. The rate is for the bank's largest and most credit-worthy borrowers.

Normally, Cincinnati banks follow the lead of major banks, especially in New York, in reducing interest rates.

Final Rites for King of Denmark

By OLE DUUS

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Representatives of all of Europe's reigning houses assembled in wintry Copenhagen today to follow the body of King Frederik IX to the Roskilde Cathedral, Denmark's 800-year-old royal sepulcher west of the capital.

Four kings, five queens and more than a dozen princes and princesses joined hundreds of thousands of mourning Danes in paying their respects to the popular king who died Jan. 14 after nearly 25 years on the throne.

For the king who became a symbol of informal monarchy, the government arranged a history-book funeral, with 48 marines to pull the old gun carriage with the sailor king's bier through the streets of Copenhagen and Roskilde. Honor guards from the armed forces of the United States, Britain, France and Sweden joined Danish marines, airmen, life guards and husarers in the military escort of the funeral procession.

The state railway, fulfilling a wish of Frederik's, took two old steam engines out of storage to power the funeral train on the slow 20-mile journey from Co-

Bahama in Protest of Customs Search

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — A Bahamian minister who later temporarily barred Americans from entering his country was forced to submit to a search in Miami by customs agents while "one twisted an arm behind his back and another loosened his trousers," the Bahamian government charges.

In an official statement Sunday, the government said Finance and Education Minister penhagen to Roskilde.

Queen Margrethe II, the king's 31-year-old daughter, was to lead the mourners, walking behind her father's bier. Though tradition did not dictate it, Queen Ingrid, the king's 62-year-old widow, also insisted on following the bier on foot. So did Queen Margrethe's two younger sisters, Princess Benedikte, 27, and Queen Anne-Marie of Greece, 25, and the three sons-in-law, Prince Henrik, the new queen's husband; Prince Richard, Benedikte's husband; and King Constantine of Greece.

Three thousand police were mobilized to watch over the visitors, who also included West German President Gustav Heinemann and President Urho Kekkonen of Finland. President Nixon sent John Eisenhower, whose father, the late president, was a personal friend of King Frederik.

Carlton Francis suffered "the humiliating and degrading experience" in the presence of his wife at Miami International Airport on Friday.

The statement said Francis was forced to submit to a body search by U.S. Customs agents although he demanded the usual courtesies as a minister of the Bahamian government.

After the incident Friday, Francis returned to Nassau Saturday and ordered that no Americans be allowed to enter his country. About 300 American tourists had to wait about three hours at Nassau International Airport before his order was lifted.

Asked why U.S. Customs might have taken the unusual precaution of searching a visiting official, a U.S. Consulate spokesman in Nassau said he did not know.

He said, however, that such officials normally advise the consulate when they plan to visit the United States, so they can be given the "courtesies of the port." He said Francis had given no advance notice of his trip.

Francis revoked his order not to process Americans through Bahamian Customs reportedly on an assurance by the U.S. consul-general in Nassau, Moncrief Spear, that the incident will be thoroughly investigated.

How to save money on your heating bill this winter

2. Have your heating equipment checked to make sure it is operating efficiently. Change filters when dirty. Heating equipment with dirty filters will not operate efficiently or economically.

3. Insulate exterior walls, ceilings and floors. Start with the attic and work down. If you feel drafts of cold air, you can be sure your heating dollars are being wasted. Find out where the cold air is coming from and install weather stripping. Heating costs for properly insulated homes are always lower.

4. Much lower heating costs can be realized with the addition of storm windows and doors and insulated ceilings, walls and floors. Cracks around windows or door frames should be caulked. Consult your heating contractor about the proper type of insulation, storm windows and doors and complete weather stripping for all openings.

5. Keep fireplace use to a minimum. Fireplaces waste heat. When fireplace is not in use, make sure the damper is closed.

6. Vents for ventilation of attics and crawl spaces should be opened sufficiently to allow a minimum flow of air to control condensation. Excessive moisture in crawl spaces or attics can destroy the effect of insulating materials and increase operating costs.

7. For maximum comfort and economy, every home should be equipped with a humidifier. Proper moisture control is essential for economical operation because air that is too dry requires more heat for a comfort level.

8. Make full use during the day of the sun's heat by keeping blinds and curtains open where direct sunlight is available.

It's not that hard to do. All it takes is a little time and effort. And you may have to spend some money in order to save some, but you'll come out ahead in the long run.

Here are recommendations that will help you save money on your heating bill, whether you heat with gas or electricity. Naturally, we're sold on electric heat. If you would like to hear our reasons, call your local AP&L office and ask to speak to your Customer Service Representative.

1. Lower the thermostat setting every night approximately 10 degrees from normal setting. Keep it at this level if you are away from your home for 24 hours or more. Thermostat settings above normal cause the system to operate longer at increased costs, while lower settings decrease costs.

Oswald: "Anything can happen in a catch-as-catch-can rubber bridge game."

Jim: "It usually does. I sat South and, while I don't have an opening bid, I felt that the vulnerability situation called for some action. I chose to open one diamond. When my partner responded two clubs, I had to rebid, but wasn't going to pass; raise clubs; rebid a three-card suit or show my spades. That left me with two no-trump and I bid it. My partner jumped to four and there I was flying in the stratosphere with no fuel."

Oswald: "Your partner's four no-trump was a raise, not Blackwood. Needless to say you passed. How did you play the hand?"

Jim: "I won the heart lead with my ace and carefully led the three of clubs. West played low. I made the best percentage play and stuck in the jack. East took his queen, thought a while and led back a heart, whereupon I sailed home with the contract."

Oswald: "East made a bad play. But you played the clubs in a way to encourage him to try a stand-pat defense. If you had led your nine of clubs East would have seen that the club suit would set immediately. When you led the three he visualized four clubs to the ace-nine in the West hand. That would leave West with two more club stoppers and the heart lead might well be the winner."

President Nixon reiterated his preference for the House version in his State of the Union message last week.

Dominick said the amendment would provide for fairer panel discussion of the 1972 political scene but Agnew was a late addition to the program.

Agnew arrived late Sunday and spent the night in a Houston hotel.

The vice president praised Houston and the home builders upon his arrival at Ellington Air Force Base.

He predicted more Americans will be able to buy new homes in the coming months.

He praised the NAHB for its "great cooperation" in helping and more effective enforcement.

Supporters of the amendment contend that an investigative and enforcement agency should not also have judicial powers. They also say that cases could be disposed of more quickly in the courts than by the EEOC, which had a backlog of 32,000 complaints as of last June 30.

The EEOC must rely on persuasion and conciliation at present.

Another major issue before the Senate is the bill's extension of the EEOC's jurisdiction to include state and local government agencies, educational institutions and firms with as few as eight persons.

The measure passed by the House provides for no broadening of the present coverage. The EEOC currently has jurisdiction over firms with 25 or more employees.

government agencies "loosen up the money flow so people can buy new homes."

Agnew's party included George Romney, housing and urban development secretary; William Ruckelshaus, Environmental Protection Agency administrator; and Henry Cashion, a deputy special assistant to President Nixon.

Houston Mayor Louie Welch and several NAHB officials welcomed the vice president.

Asked if he had a special message for the homebuilders organization, Agnew replied, "I'm here to express the president's appreciation for the tremendous job they've done."

Agnew said he was always glad to be in Houston because it is such a "significant city."

Tight security measures were evident both at the air base and at the hotel.

Local anti-war leaders said last week they planned to stage a "legal and peaceful" demonstration during Agnew's appearance at the convention but no pickets were on hand Sunday.

Representatives from the Houston Peace Action Coalition and the Student Mobilization Committee said they expected 300 to 400 demonstrators to assemble across from the Astorhall prior to the vice president's arrival.

Lincoln FHA Activities

The FHA activities for December were initiation of new members and our annual Miss FHA contest which were very successful. The chapter presented their first chapel program to the entire student body. The Christmas setting was very beautiful with drawing done by Linder Jefferson. The president Gwendolyn Sue Scott brought heart felt greetings centered around the Christmas season.

Nineteen Seventy-one Miss FHA (Wanda Ogden gracefully draped The Red Satin FHA chapel around the winning Miss FHA (Sharon McFall) and presented to Principal, Henry Boy the sparkling Crown from her head and he in turn placed it upon the head of the winning queen. Miss McFall was presented with a beautiful wrist watch.

Other members receiving gifts were Misses, Diane Walker, Ethel Martin, Eva Moore, Wanda Black, Zoella Williamson, and Margaret Edward. The birthday gifts went to Joyce Carrigan, Rosie Johnson, Mary Wiley and Janet Taylor.

The days event were climaxed with open house, and the entire faculty and student body were served goodies and fruits.

man, Stallings vice chairman and Talkingdon secretary of the board during the executive session. The election was re-enacted in open session after a newsman notified Bowers that the action in closed session was illegal under the Freedom of Information Act.

Before listening to Pratt's statement, the board approved his recommendation that Tech withdraw for the rest of the year from attempts to establish a branch college at Hot Springs. Pratt revealed earlier in the week that he would make the recommendation because Bumpers and the Commission on Coordination of Higher Education Finance had not taken the necessary action.

Pratt said he had spent some time composing the statement, which covered most of the questions which have been raised about his stewardship of the college since he left a staff position at the University of Arkansas four years ago.

He did not mention Hull by name although he talked about the difficulty in succeeding the former president. After leaving the college, Hull worked for the Russellville Chamber of Commerce and reportedly remained intensely interested in affairs of the college until his death in December.

Shooting Death Investigated

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Pulaski County officials continue to investigate today the shooting death of Cecil Turner, 27, of Mayflower.

Authorities said Turner was fatally shot with a .25-caliber pistol during an argument at a cafe near the Pulaski-Faulkner county line Saturday night.

Charges have not been filed in his death, officials said Sunday.

Sometimes Word Disguises the Act

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Sometimes the words tend to disguise the act, not only in politics or governmental affairs, but in all endeavors in which men must exert total effort to achieve their ends.

In his State of the Union Message, President Nixon asked Congress to resist the temptation to overspend, which tended to, but did not, disguise the fact that Congress is angry at him for a $40 billion budget deficit.

And while urging Congress to resist the temptation to build an "economic Fortress America" and help instead to erect a new economic order as a foundation for prosperity and peace, he also said defense spending would rise.

Each suggestion can be defended, but no explanations can remove from the minds of listeners the notion that buried deep may be some contradictions.

There are questions also concerning the recent roasting given businessmen by Treasury Secretary John Connally in an address to the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

"The rest of the world is at work, while we're worrying. They're outworking us, they're outthinking us, they're outplanning us day after day."

If that is so, it doesn't quite jibe with the administration's words of last summer. There are no contradictions involved, perhaps, but certainly the emphasis has changed.

When the 10 per cent import surcharge was imposed and the realignment of currencies was sought last Aug. 15, the world was told that the United States no longer was willing to put up with unfair trade practices.

Deep in their subconscious a lot of Americans hope that Peterson is right but wonder if Connally is. They wonder if the words disguise a fact.

Tech President Hands in His Resignation

RUSSELLVILLE, Ark. (AP)

— Dr. George L. B. Pratt resigned Saturday as president of Arkansas Polytechnic College, saying a new president was needed to lead the college out of controversy.

Pratt said his resignation was final and not something the board could accept or reject.

Pratt then read a five-page statement which called on faculty members, community leaders and trustees to unite to solve the problems which have resulted from academic reorganization at Tech.

"I here specifically disclaim this statement as a gambit to retaining the presidency of Arkansas Tech," Pratt said without emotion. "I will not accept another contract under any circumstances."

The resignation is effective June 30.

Dr. Ralph Bowers of Harrison, chairman of the board, immediately called on all persons interested in Tech's welfare to re-evaluate the objectives "in this period of transition."

Gov. Dale Bumpers, contacted at his home in Charleston, refused Sunday to comment on Pratt's resignation.

"I'm sure that was a very personal thing with Dr. Pratt," Bumpers said.

"The only thing I would say is that I sincerely hope Arkansas Tech, its faculty, alumni and all people interested in that school can resolve their differences and start pulling together for the betterment of higher education at Tech," Bumpers said.

State Rep. L. L. "Doc" Bryan of Russellville said he was not surprised that Pratt resigned.

"I felt that under the conditions there wasn't any way he could be effective as president with the feelings of the students and the faculty," Bryan said.

"What everyone needs to do is to get on with the education of the students," he said.

Pratt submitted his resignation in a closed board meeting. The trustees remained in executive session for about 20 minutes after Pratt left the meeting, but Bowers said the resignation was not discussed during the period.

The board refused to accept Pratt's resignation when it was offered a month ago during a stormy board meeting.

Pratt said in his lengthy statement that many of the problems encountered during his four years as president resulted primarily because he was attempting to take over the college after it had been run for 35 years by President J. W. Hull. "The longer the administration of any college is in office, the more difficult it is for a succeeding administration to make changes," Pratt said.

He said his problems were increased by a "rather inordinate and unhealthy influence over the governance of the college by a few individuals in the local community" during the previous administration. He also said faculty reaction to his administration and to some board policies bordered on anarchy.

The current controversy at Tech came to a head a month ago when Pratt submitted to the board his plan for streamlining Tech's curriculum as proposed for all colleges by the legislature in Act of 1971.

The board approved the plan 3-2, although community and faculty elements urged rejection.

Earlier, the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, Tech's accrediting agency, was sharply critical of the college in a re-evaluation and indicated that accreditation was in danger unless improvements were made. An NCA report said the Tech faculty was apathetic and some faculty members were "intellectually mediocre."

Pratt's 3-2 advantage on the board ended last month when the term of one of his backers, Dr. George Malone of Atkins, expired and Bumpers appointed Dr. Jerry Turner of Prairie Grove to succeed him. Bumpers said his replacement of Malone, an appointee of former Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller, did not mean he was taking sides against Pratt.

Turner did not have to take a stand Saturday because of Pratt's action. It is possible, however, that the board will review the Pratt reorganization plan at a later date. At that time, Turner would have to decide to side with members Jack Thiele of Fort Smith and Bowers, who supported it, or with Alan Stallings of Morrilton and Randy Talkingdon of Russellville, who opposed it.

Bowers was elected chair-
